

WHEN IS THE RIGHT TIME TO GET HELP?

- When a School District has found that a Student is not eligible for special education services.
- When a Student is threatened with punishment for behavior which may have been a manifestation of their disability.
- When a School District is not in compliance with a Student's IEP.
- When evaluations, progress reports, or other data indicate that a student is failing to make social, emotional, and/or academic progress.
- Whenever there is a dispute between Parents and the School District which Parents feel, if not resolved, will result in educational harm to their child.
